DETAILED ACTION

Specification

The use of the trademark VELCRO has been noted in this application. It should be capitalized wherever it appears and be accompanied by the generic terminology.

Although the use of trademarks is permissible in patent applications, the proprietary nature of the marks should be respected and every effort made to prevent their use in any manner which might adversely affect their validity as trademarks.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1 – 4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Roessler et al. (US 5,403,342).

With respect to claim 1, Roessler et al. (hereinafter "Roessler") discloses a diaper construction comprising a diaper wrap having inner and outer surfaces, a first plurality of hook and loop connector parts (42) secured to the inner surface of the diaper wrap in a predetermined configuration; a further pair of hook and loop connector parts secured to the outer surface of the diaper wrap and joinable with certain of the first plurality of connectors (43); a liquid absorbent biodegradable insert (21) of generally sheetlike construction, said insert having a geometry closely similar to that of the diaper wrap (figure 2) and a second plurality of connectors (63) secured to the insert joinable with certain others of the first plurality of connectors for releasably securing the insert to the garment as set forth in figures 2 – 14.

The difference between Roessler and claim 1 is the provision that the second plurality of connectors is hook and loop.

Roessler discloses that the second plurality of connectors are peelable bonds, but may be replaced with other suitable releasable bonds as set forth in col. 12, lines 46 – 55.

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to substitute one type of releasable bond for another since it has been held to be within the general skill of a worker in the art to select a known material on the basis of its suitability for the intended use as a matter of obvious design choice.

As to claim 2, Roessler discloses a diaper in which the insert is constructed of a plurality of liquid absorbent paper sheets as set forth in figure 12.

With reference to claim 3, Roessler discloses a diaper in which the garment and insert are each elongated with generally parallel opposite end edges and opposite side edges curved inwardly toward each other as set forth in figure 12.

Regarding claim 4, absent a critical teaching and/or unexpected result, the examiner contends that the claimed limitation is an obvious matter of design choice that does not patentably distinguish the claimed invention from the prior art.
